CDP reacts to child pornography arrests

The Christian Democratic Party (CDP) expressed satisfaction with the news that a child pornography network has been uncovered in South Africa.

“Added to our satisfaction however, is the concern that so many community leaders, such as a school principal and teachers, were allegedly involved,” says CDP leader, Rev. Theunis Botha.

“Without wide-ranging moral rejuvenation it will remain an uphill battle to eradicate anti-social behaviour such as this.

“We thus call on voters to seriously consider drawing their X’s next to the name of morality driven parties such as the CDP. For the sake of your children.”

CDP reageer op arrestasies vir kinderpornografie

Die Christen-Demokratiese Party (CDP) het sy tevredenheid uitgespreek met die oopvlek van ‘n groot kinderpornografie-netwerk in Suid-Afrika.

“Ons tevredenheid word egter getemper deur kommer dat vooraanstaande mense soos ‘n skoolhoof en onderwysers na bewering by so iets betrokke kon wees,” sê ds. Theunis Botha, leier van die CDP. “Sonder algemene morele herlewing en die staak van permissiewe aksies, gaan dit egter ‘n opdraande stryd bly om euwels van hierdie aard uit te roei.

“Ons doen dus ‘n beroep op die kiesers om in volgende jaar se algemene verkiesing ernstig te oorweeg om hul kruisies by ‘n moreel-gedrewe party oos die CDP te trek. Ter wille van u kinders.”
